

This is wrong for a number of reasons, technical, philisophical, and legal. However, the most obvious of which is this:
The Supreme Court ruled that copying for personal use is not copyright infringement, to include copy protection technology in HDTV goes against that ruling, or at least attempts to circumvent it.